

The society of modern Britain has increasingly become more diverse. To ensure that we live in a society where we feel free, safe and respected, we are encouraged to implement some basic, human values. All educational organisations have now a legal duty to encourage learners and staff to discuss, explore and understand the impact of these values on living in modern Britain.

Rule of Law

- Our laws protect all citizens
- No-one is above the law
- We are all innocent until proven guilty

Democracy

- Democracy means “Rule by the people”
- Our opinions count; everyone has the right to vote
- Laws and important decisions are made by elected representatives

British Values

Mutual Respect and Tolerance

- Respect is shown to all cultures and backgrounds
- No-one can be discriminated against because of age, gender, sexuality or disability
- We show tolerance for all religions and beliefs

Individual Liberty

- We have the freedom to say what we think
- We are free to make choices, so long as we don't cause harm
- No-one should force you to act against your will
